下記の文章は、International Nurses Day 2024: The economic power of care(国際看護師の日 : ケアの経済力)というテーマで書かれた論文の文頭部分を抜粋した内容です。

The theme for International Nurses Day 2024 is the economic power of care, in recognition of the enormous contribution nurses makes to health locally, regionally, and globally. We know that nurses are central to the delivery of healthcare globally, providing public health, health promotion, healthcare and health leadership in increasingly complex situations and settings, including schools and occupational health settings, prisons, refugee camps and many other places that nursing care is needed①. People expect nurses to contribute to preventing ill health, and that if they become ill or need healthcare, that there will be skilled nursing care available to them. Over many years, nursing has come to be viewed as an invisible and infinite resource②. This view, of nurses as an invisible and infinite resource, has likely contributed to underinvestment in nursing over many years③.
